AN OXFORD COUNTY PRODUCT

Some Words of Explanation.

We are here. The thirteenth annual edition of the Fair Daily. Two days only—Tuesday and Wednesday. It will cost you—if not an advertiser one penny a copy for Tuesday's daily but the Wednesday paper will be given out on the Fair Grounds after 3 o'clock p. m. Take one home and read it.

The Daily shows the representative business houses and artisans of the two villages. They are worthy of your patronage. They ask you for it. Give it them.

You will notice there are no out-of-town competitors advertising in the Daily. It's strictly local. To be sure

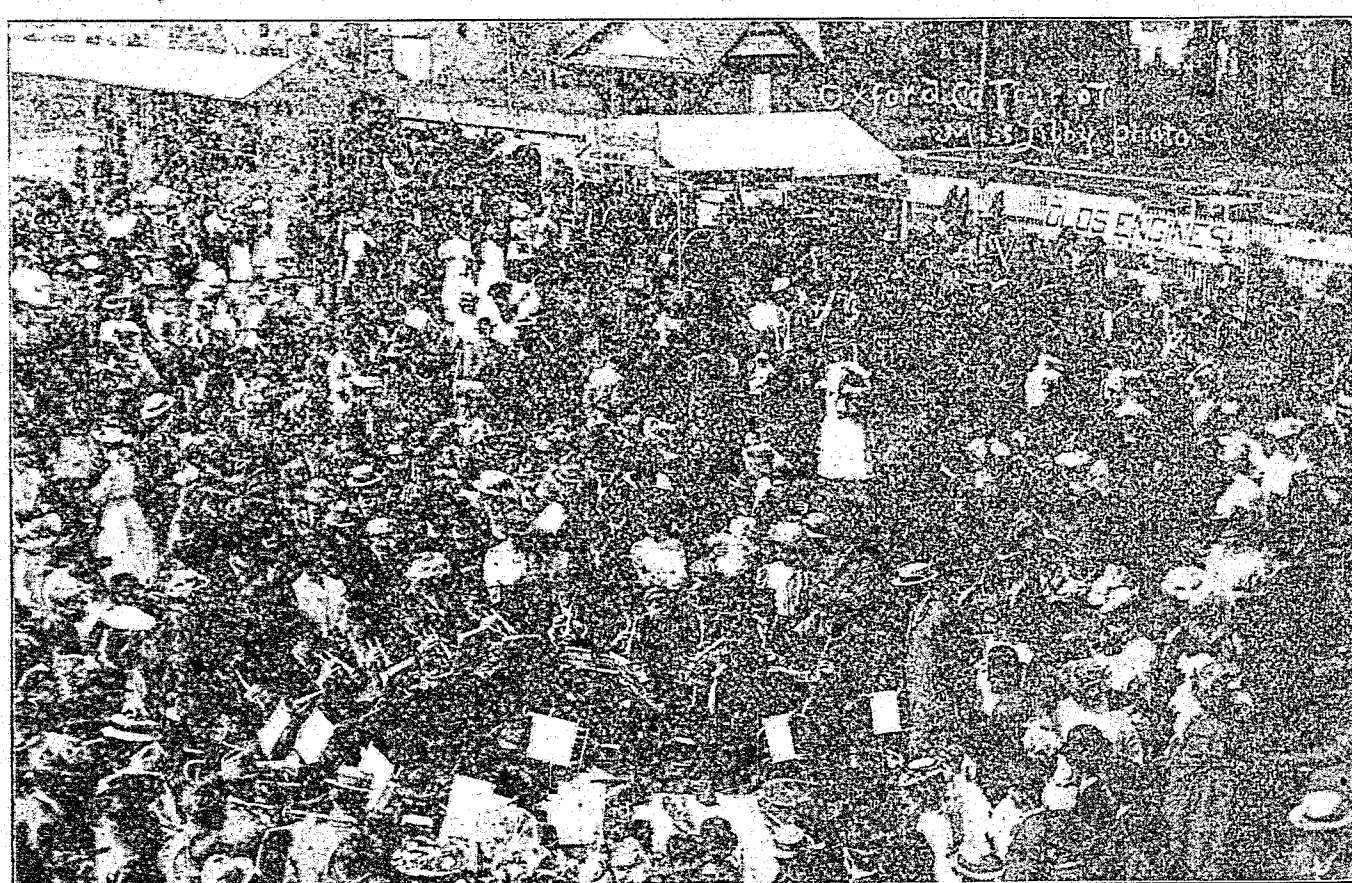

Down the Highway.

The fairies began to arrive Friday from the State fair and since then they have been coming in steadily. Monday morning there was a large number of them ready for business, many others getting ready and still more coming in. All lines are well represented and many new features are among the lot, including a Philippine village. A curiosity in the shape of a sea turtle captured off the coast of Maine will no doubt attract many people.

George Wentworth serves lunches and sells soft beers, hot frankforts and Moxie. Emily Rembe, soft drinks, cigars, cigarettes, etc. W. W. Kerrigan sells soft drinks. M. Conley, soft drinks, frankforts, etc. Cordwell & Thomas of South Paris ed calf, and everything came from Florida except the guinea pigs and a pair of rabbits. They have a raccoon with two babies, ragged fowl, monkey faced owls never exhibited north of Washington, D. C., until this summer, pole cat, like our skunk only scentless, 2-year-old cub bear, wolf, baby alligators, a diamond back rattler which is 7 feet long. And with this show is one of the smallest men in the world, Admiral Don O. Robinson, born in Belfast, 45 years old, weighs 46 pounds and is 45 inches tall.

E. H. Fellows of Lancaster, N. H., is here this year the same as last with the Big Eli Ferris wheel. G. W. Foster of South Framingham has two stands. Clam chowder lunches, ice cream, candy. 57th year in the business, been coming to the Oxford County fair for years. Hiram Doughty of Providence, R. I.,

it does not show all but it's a fair representation of the business of the towns. Everyone has had an opportunity to be in it and if they choose to be left out it's not our fault, they have been invited.

It contains the story and an invitation to nearly one hundred different advertisers to visit their store or call on them. There are some people so fortunate with business so long established and so well known as to think they need no advertising.

Those whose ads appear in this paper do not belong to that class, they want your business and will use you well. Give it to them.

Tell them you saw it in the Daily.

Entertainment and Dance.

Chester E. Oelrich and his Vaudeville Entertainers will be at Norway Opera House, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. This entertainment will be followed by a three-hour dance. Music by Swastika Orchestra. It is well known that "Jack" Oelrich always gives more in the way of entertainments than he advertises.

sell from their tent lunches, frankforts, tobacco, cigars, etc. O. W. Spencer and wife of Oldtown came from Presque Isle. Have been here several years. Candy, ice cream, lemonade and tonics.

L. R. Conlon of New Orleans, La., has a photograph gallery turning out at the rate of 1000 cards every two hours. This is an invention of his own and puzzles the photographers everywhere to know how the work is done so quickly. Simmons & Hammond's ice cream cart from Portland is the only one on the grounds selling ice cream sandwiches. They are made from pure cream.

M. Gonyer serves lunches and sells soft drinks. George Dulton sells soft drinks.

Frank Moore has a sea turtle on exhibition that weighs 1,000 pounds. Captured in Maine 15 miles from mouth of Kennebec.

An interesting place to visit and one of educational value is the Florida Animal Zoo, Knowlton & Booth, proprietors. They have exhibited at Old Orchard all summer. Everything they have is alive except a mounted head of a double head.

one of the oldest ice cream men in the business, makes his own cones. He has one stand in the hall and two just outside the entrance.

J. O. Elwell of Brunswick, the veteran sandwich man, handles besides these soft drinks, cigars, etc. C. A. Munihan of Providence, R. I., is here with a lunch counter.

Richard Walker of Norway serves lunches, sells sodas, etc. C. S. Parnell of Boston represents the Squire Company, selling pork products and ham and frankforts.

Wm. Slater of Providence runs the largest dining tent on the grounds. They have a seating capacity of 200 and serve full course dinners. They started from the Bangor fair and take a fair a week to Richmond, Va. They serve roast meat, fruits, cakes, etc.

Fred W. Knox at his tent cafe serves meals at all hours.

Albert S. Marcus of Boston, the well known Mohomet that was at the Lewis and Clark fair, was invited by the selectmen of Paris. He takes a black sheet of paper and places it in his magic wand and it reappears with a full horoscope of the Norway Schools' Drawing Exhibit in Hall.

On the right of the hall over the fruit exhibit there is a display of the drawings done by the pupils of the graded schools of Norway. The work is arranged under cards telling the grade which the work represents. Both the drawing and the cards are wholly the work of the scholars and show much care and artistic ability. With a little comparison of the work of the successive grades, one can readily see the quality of work varying with the advancement of the grade.

Besides being a most interesting collection of school work and artistic attempts, this display shows several other things. But a few years ago the boy or girl who was caught by the teacher drawing houses, men, etc., on his slate was severely punished for inattention to his studies. It was thought only careless play for the child to draw in school. More recent and intelligent study of educational systems has shown that the best results may be obtained by noticing the natural tendency of the child and using these qualities in teaching subjects which are in themselves dry and uninteresting.

Music was introduced in many schools to begin the day's work or giving the schoolroom an air of happiness and freedom. Now nearly every school in the country has music and a great many have drawing.

This fact goes far to show that the school board of Norway has done all they can to further the best methods of education. Many people will undoubtedly undervalue this display of work in color and line by their children, not knowing its real significance. Drawing like any other study causes the pupil to think for himself, use his own power of choice, and further develop his tastes for color, form and general beauty. It gives him an interest in "things" for themselves. He sees beauty where he never before saw it, and if he has been well instructed by the time he leaves the grammar or high school has some considerable knowledge of the handling of different mediums and has an ability to see correctly and express himself on paper in a creditable and satisfactory manner.

This acquisition added to the usual curriculum has besides its own value many happy pleasures of its own. It has taken the student's mind from the more prosaic problems and given it something really "fun" to think out and do. It gives that ever present desire to create an opportunity to broaden into useful and beneficial lines which will be a constant pleasure throughout the student's life. So those who see this exhibit must give it its deserving credit. Being conducted as it is under a great financial handicap, it is shown to the people of the two towns the need of better and more efficient drawing appropriations.

Rough House at So. Paris Station.

At the South Paris station, Friday noon, soon after the arrival of the train from Lewiston, a general rough and tumble took place between a crowd of fakers and show people who came en route for the fair grounds. They got at it in such earnest style that deputy sheriff W. L. Farrar was called, who after quite a struggle in which he got knocked about more or less succeeded in arresting seven of the offenders, who were tried before Judge W. F. Jones, Saturday afternoon, at Concert hall, where there was a good sized audience, composed largely of fair fakers.

It was brought out in the evidence that 17 quarts of liquor was disposed of by the crowd on the train. Only one of the bunch arrested got away without sentence. This was William Wilkins, against whom were taken two charges, intoxication and disturbing the peace and assault with intent to kill. During melee Wilkins had drawn a revolver but the evidence showed that it was unloaded and used only in one of the show performances, and wasn't carried as a weapon.

John Fitzgerald for intoxication and disturbing the peace was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $22.99. George Vigne, intoxication and disturbing the peace, $22.99, interfering with the officer $22.99.

Andrew Doyle, intoxication and disturbing the peace $22.99, interfering with officer $22.99. These three didn't pay the fines and were taken to jail.

Wm. Canfield paid on the two charges two fines of $5 and costs amounting in both cases to $22.99. George Prescott was discharged on the intoxication charge and paid $22.99 for interfering with the officer.

Ralph Slater was found guilty on the charge of intoxication and given the same fine as the others. He appealed and furnished cash bond of $50.

E. F. Smith, esq., appeared as attorney for one or more of the men.

This is the first time in many years that such an occurrence has been brought about by the Oxford County fakers.

Down the Midway.

person's life without the aid of a pen or pencil, by simply praying to his God. Buror and makes motion to the four quarters of the globe. He is what is known as a high priest Hindoo. He has puzzled all people at the world's fair at St. Louis.

Larry Bidge of Norway has the only pop corn tent on the grounds located near the main entrance. He has the exclusive right in the pop corn trade.

The largest part of the shows on the Midway this year are controlled by L. B. Walker of Boston known as "Diamond Lew" from the fact that in his mouth he has what will keep away the wolf for many a day to come, his teeth being filled with diamonds. Mr. Walker conducts two large theatres in Boston and a number of others throughout New England. Every fall he picks the cream of his different companies making one large company and plays the fairs. His chief show is Suberba, the Show Beautiful, which consists of 12 clever talented show girls and four clever comedians.

This is a clean, refined and up to date entertainment, introducing all the latest songs and dances and should be seen.

It is presided over by "Gentlemen" Joe Smith who in various ways and pleasant smiles will make the inmates of the coffers. He is considered to be one of the very best "spielers" or lecturers in the show business today. He has been in almost every town, city and hamlet in the United States and has had some exciting experiences with his show especially in the south. At one time he narrowly escaped lynching. He was in Texas on the charge of being a horse thief, but at the eleventh hour his innocence was proved and the rope was removed from around his neck. If you are on the Midway this week be sure and see how he introduces the Suberba ladies with the show.

The Philippine village is also controlled by L. B. Walker and is a sensation that should not be missed. These are genuine Philippines right from the islands and are all that are left of a party of 76 that were first brought to this country to be exhibited at the Jamestown exhibition. They give performances that are interesting, educational and amusing, showing the different customs and manners peculiar to their tribe. "Doc" Howard is the orator on this attraction and gives very interesting lectures on it.

Wild Mamie, the Yucatan monkey girl is here and certainly appears to be as wild as the barker says. Kiko is a wild man from the Philippine islands, who "eats raw meat and drinks pure blood."

Melle Helena, known as the seer of Wall street, palmist and card reader, is also on the grounds. She is the same one that two weeks ago in Waterville predicted that sad accident to the airship.

The merry-go-round is owned and run by E. H. Fellows of Lancaster, N. H., who also runs the Ferris wheel.

Eating Places.

The places to get something to eat are numerous. Besides the several regular eating places there are a large number of tents and stands about the grounds. Those whom we see here every year at their regular places include:

Alvin Lovejoy of South Paris is at his location here for the 12th year. Serves meals of roast meats and other good things.

F. L. Starbird of Norway serves meals and sells cigars, sodas, etc.

Twitchell Bros. of Norway are in their usual stand serving meals and handling an extensive line of all kinds of fruits.

The Norway Congregational and Universalist churches and the South Paris Congregational and Universalist churches are serving meals at their usual location.

General Forecast.

The prospects for a record breaking fair were never better than they are at the fall. More fakers are on the grounds than ever. All sorts of entertainments and amusements are provided, many novelties and freaks are among them, and then the merry-go-round and Ferris wheel are always a popular feature.

The exhibit entries are large in all lines. Some of the best trotters are entered for the races. The most of these are late in arriving but the stalls are engaged and they will all be here on time. We always have some interesting horse and cattle pulling and this year will be no exception.

Refreshment and eating places there are in plenty and no one need be hungry or thirsty.

The weather starts in to be all that could be desired and everything combined points to a great big success.

Potato Diseases New to Maine.

As a result of investigations conducted by the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, Fusarium dry rot or wilt and "black-leg" two diseases of the potato stem and tuber not hitherto credited to the State, have been found to exist in several localities. Since one of these is distributed by means of the seed and the other is probably spread in the same manner, it is important that the growers at once learn to recognize them.

The appearance of affected plants above ground is somewhat similar in both diseases. The plants appear more or less withered, varying with the severity of the attack. The branches and leaves, instead of spreading out normally, tend to grow upward, forming a somewhat more compact top, frequently with the young leaves inclined and folded against the stem. Later they may become lighter green, or even yellow, and the whole plant gradually dies. If the disease progresses rapidly, the stem may fall over quite suddenly and wilt.

In the case of the Fusarium disease, the underground portions of the stem will show discolored or brown, dry patches or streaks. The roots are brittle and weak, and in some cases are covered with a white, pink, or reddish growth. The Fusarium disease also attacks the tubers, and experiment has shown that it is by this means that the disease is spread. Like the late blight, it causes a dry rot of the tuber, but the first symptoms of disease are nearly always at the stem end, and in the form of a brownish or blackened ring a short distance below the surface.

At this stage the tuber may appear perfectly sound and healthy externally. Later there is a general discoloration of the flesh along and a decided shrinking of the tuber. The skin becomes wrinkled around the stem end, and the tuber becomes very light and often nearly as hard as wood. Infected potatoes may appear perfectly sound when placed in storage, and come out as described above. If introduced into the soil, the disease may persist for some time. It is caused by a parasitic fungus.

Black-leg, as its name indicates, is characterized by a pronounced blackening of the stem below ground, usually running up an inch or more above the surface. Sometimes, under favorable conditions, the inky-black discoloration may follow up a portion of the stem for several inches above ground. During the active progress of the disease the invaded tissues show a soft, wet decay, but this apparently does not attack the fibrous portions of the stem.

Let the diseased portions may dry out, but the stem retains most of the black color. Usually the seed tuber is entirely decayed by a soft rot, and not infrequently, if young tubers had been formed before the complete invasion of the stem, they are also affected in the same manner. Almost without exception, the disease begins on the stem at its junction with the seed tuber and progresses upward. Similar troubles elsewhere have been attributed to a fungus, but there is every reason to think that the disease here described as "black-leg" is of a bacterial nature.

Watch for First Symptoms of Weakness

It is generally accepted as a fact that coughing or any evidence of irritation which becomes at all pronounced of the trachea or bronchial pipes is an indication of weakness, usually indicating more or less than a low state of vitality. How often this slight irritation is followed by a disagreeable cough and finally tuberculosis? Nature has her signboards ready at every corner, pointing the way if men will only "stop, look, listen." Restore the vitality with rest, easily digested food and sunshine. The cough stops; the voice again has a full resonant ring and all danger is passed. Continued weakness would have given tuberculosis germs a chance to grow upon an irritated surface and then—

Now, I want to make the same application to the cow. She is subject to conditions comparable to the human.

She works hard, is bred for accomplishment, oftentimes far beyond the feed and care supplied. This is a severe strain upon her vitality. A slight cough just after eating is no uncommon thing; usually dairymen do not even hear it, so common is the occurrence.

Now comes our comparison. Just watch these cows and observe whether or not those that continue to cough are not cows that are working hard and lack nutrition. Begin with a small increase of feed; watch out until they begin to put on new vigor and vitality. Some times the flow of milk will increase at the start, and the feed does not increase the store of energy. With these cows more time will be required, but in most cases time will do the business. This is no theory with me; it will in most cases work out.

Thursday and Friday of last week were the dates set for the annual fair of the Town of Naples which was held this year in connection with the Old Home week celebration. There was an old fashioned fair with the horse races eliminated.

Jungle Man's Secrets Not

Given Away at Fair.
He doesn't tell. A whole lot of visitors at the Jungle Show would like to know how Flint feeds and cares for the vicious lynx and other strange and interesting animals without getting scratched or bitten. No one should deny themselves the privilege of seeing all these living curiosities at the County fair next week.
Anyone can throw food at an animal but there's something about the handling that isn't common knowledge and Linwood isn't giving the secret away.
See the Jungle Show at the Fair Grounds next week. See ad.

The Artist.
There came an unknown artist, sweet and shy, into old Nature's studio one day. April was sketching there, and June and May; With careless glance they passed the stranger by. But Nature kindly bade her come and try her skill among them; so, without delay, She set to work; and first she sketched a gray And cheerless landscape, with a frowning sky; Then with deft brush she laid fresh colors on— Crimson and gold and green and russet-brown— And over all the living sunlight shone. "Who art thou?" cried the students, looking down Upon her work, which put their own to shame; Bismark, she murmured, "Autumn is my name."

The Best.
Just before you leave the grounds for home to-morrow the big edition of the Fair Daily will be on the grounds free for every one to take home and read at their leisure. The papers are filled with the fall local advertising besides telling of the fair's daily doings. It is about time to buy wearing apparel and articles for winter for the house, the stable and the farm. You will want to know where to get the best, right here at home.

Fair Ground Improvements.

And Early Preparations for the Fair.
The Fair Grounds this year are in a much improved condition. The horse stalls at the right of the entrance have all had new roofing put on. The entire length of the fence on the south side of the grounds has been repaired and other places in the fence have received attention.

The entire grandstand has been gone over and new supports put in so that its absolute safety is assured.
The track has been resoled and continually worked so that it is in excellent condition. The fence around the track has been thoroughly repaired.

All the sheds and places of exhibit have received attention. At the hall, several improvements are noticeable. The shelves for the exhibits have been rebuilt, this time placed in an elevated position so that the spectator in passing along can readily see the articles on exhibition.

Some of the exhibitors were on the grounds early getting things in shape. Among the first to begin work in the hall were F. A. Shurtleff & Co., N. Dayton Bolster & Co., South Paris, and Vivian Akers was arranging the drawing exhibit of the Norway schools.

The telephone for the use of the public was put in Friday.
On the grounds the merry-go-round had arrived, one refreshment booth was ready for business. Some were at their places clearing up and still more were coming in.

Ed Fisher, the horse trainer, and his assistants were busy exercising some of the string of horses that he has had on the grounds for several weeks. President Wm. J. Wheeler and other officers of the society were busy attending to various details.

A little excitement occurred Friday afternoon on the car that brings the passengers from the west bound train. The car was crowded with regular passengers and "fair people," and when nearly to the fair grounds one of the latter who was standing fell from the car. He had the appearance of being somewhat intoxicated and was going to "scrap" with the conductor, as he claimed that he put him off. The man had refused to pay his fare. The trouble was soon quieted.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

General Repair Work.
Harry Everett and crew, George W. Everett, H. E. Abbott and Bert Hosmer, are busy these days doing general repair work. They have shingled James Shedd's house. Shingled the Pine Grove cemetery buildings. At Mrs. Mary J. Bennett's, they repaired the sills and straightened the stable up.

Their latest job is at J. O. Crooker's storehouse, where they are removing the shingles and are to put on roofing in their place.

Mrs. Melissa Bennett recently visited at Gilead.

Clarence Dunham shot two wild ducks at "the bog," Friday.

Charles Merrill has finished painting his house on Paris street.

Mildred Bangs finished work at the telephone office, Saturday.

Frank Kimball returned Friday from a trip to Boston, Portland and Lewiston.

Smoke rolled in on us, Friday, till the horizon was entirely shrouded in smoke from forest fires.

Delbert Tabor and wife, nee Inez Tubbs, of Yonkers, New York, are visiting at C. N. Tubbs'.

John Hutchins and crew are painting the Barrett property, corner of Main and Bridge streets.

Samuel H. Hayden and family have closed their cottage for the season and returned to Haverhill, Mass.

F. W. Walker of Harrison, formerly of Norway, who, for the past year has conducted a bakery in Bridgton, has sold his bakery.

The Fair is Norway and Paris' "old home celebration." Many are the boys and girls away in the world who come home to the fair.

Dora Mills, who works for Mrs. Geo. I. Cummings, was taken suddenly ill with appendicitis Friday, and was taken to the hospital Friday afternoon.

E. N. Swett and H. B. Young were appointed, at the last board of trade meeting, as a committee to look into the proposition of building a public wharf.

John S. Ames of Bridgton and Walter B. Stone, Lovell, were in town Friday on their return from State fair. They expect to have the best fair at Bridgton next week that was ever held there.

Mrs. Fred Pike was operated on for appendicitis at the Central Maine General hospital Wednesday of last week. She is doing well. Ed Rich was operated on at the same hospital Thursday and is getting along well.

Geraldine Whitman received the silver medal at the gold medal contest of her college at Ellingham, Ill., where she is learning photography, and this was a contest for the best pictures by the college students. A banquet and addresses were attendant features of contest.

SOUTH PARIS.

H. F. Hall left Sunday on his return to Kansas City.

Mrs. Heidner is spending a few days with friends in Bethel.

Jessie Tolman has returned from a two weeks' visit in Boston.

Mrs. C. E. Moagale visited in Lewiston and Auburn on Sunday.

Mrs. J. A. Scott is spending a few days visiting relatives in Readfield and other places.

Rose Murphy spent Saturday and Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. James W. Crooker at Locke's Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Morrison of Ruthenford, N. J., are guests of Mrs. Morrison's brother, L. S. Billings.

Percy Briggs, who had an operation for appendicitis at the Central Maine General hospital several weeks ago, returned home, Sunday.

SMILEY'S

When you see the name, you think of Dry Goods, because that is Smiley's business in several towns and it is his only business.

There is Power in Our Chain of Stores

There is fine saving in our heavy purchases. You will notice it in your dealings with us.

SMILEY'S, NORWAY,

However, is the special store we speak of now. The largest in this section of the state.

The Dress Goods Department is packed with the newest creations, in all the qualities, from low to fine. A dressmaker is there to assist when you need her.

Linens.—The good housewife's heart can be made glad, looking through our Imported and Domestic Damask, Napkins and Towels, and the reasonable prices attract, as well as the extensive line of qualities.

Suits, Coats and Furs.—This department is one of the finest in New England for medium priced goods—that is, from $5 to $25. These goods are direct from the factory, were made to our order, and we guarantee the price on every piece we sell.

Blankets.—When you purchase, you can save much money here. Our large orders were given to the mill agents at the time of business depression, when a little money would buy much. To buy them now since business has revived, the cost would be more, but we are selling our early purchases at the saving prices.

Hosiery and Underwear.—You have probably purchased goods from this department. However, we want to jog your memory concerning the excellency of these goods. Quality, first of all, is considered. Every merchant has a 25c. vest, but few will sell you the high quality that you find here, because they will not pay for the high grade of yarn. We do as we do, because we will not put out anything we cannot stand behind.

Throughout the store, we are continually offering inducements—Neckwear, Belts, Laces, Ribbons, Wrappers, Sweaters, Corsets, and wherever you go, you will be attracted by extensive assortments and price savings.

Some Farms are Too Large.

The story is going the rounds of the press of a man that had a 1,200-acre farm and had three daughters. As each got married he gave her a quarter of the farm, or 300 acres, and put all his stock and all his cash on the remainder.

To his surprise he found that he made just as much money on the smaller portion as on the larger portion. When he had but 300 acres left he found his profits as large as they had been on the 1,200 acres, and he was being worried a great deal less.

There are many farms that are too large. They are too costly to keep up, and their owners cannot manage to advantage. The larger the farm the more skilled must be the management be, for the greater will be the proportion of work that must be done by others than by the owner. This is the point at which the big farm is put to a disadvantage. A hired worker can never do the work that the owner can, for he lacks interest.

To Lighten Household Cares.

Getting breakfast for a family of workers who must be off at an early hour may be a tedious and laborious task by doing a few minutes' work the night before. In our home in the country, we make sure that plenty of dry kindlings and good wood are put near the range, matches are in the morning. In the summer, milk, butter and meats may remain in the refrigerator or down cellar, but in winter they can be kept close at hand.

Prince Henry Westland, the winner of the 2:27 trot at the State fair Wednesday, is owned by George Record of Buckfield.
He is five years old and is by Westland.
He started at Waterville first and won the 2:27 trot in 2:24 and a fraction. His mark Wednesday was 2:21 and a fraction.

The Main State Fair will clear about $7,000 this year. They had fine weather and a good show.

Good Stock Most Profitable.

On account of the short crop of hay it will probably be deemed advisable, if not looked upon as a necessity, to dispose of some of the stock now on hand before the season arrives when it must be fed from the reduced supply of fod-ders now stored in the barns. The stock now in the hands of the farmers is generally reasonably good and returning fairly satisfactory results to owners.

We take no stock in the extreme claims set up by sensational writers for the public price of one-half or three-fourths of the cows on hand in the herds being a daily loss to their owners.
Yet there are cows of all grades of value but the cow that is running its owner in debt is soon disposed of and is no longer a factor to be reckoned with in the problem. There are cows better than others in the herd and these are the ones to be desired.

Which animals to sell is not always a simple problem. The best animals are always in most demand and therefore sell for the most money, and as money is the object for which animals are kept the decision to sell from that extreme of merit has much to support such a course.
